Compression is necessary for the management of swelling, edema and lymphedema often associated with lower extremity wounds. EdemaWear offers a novel approach that delivers compression under a series of longitudinal ridges (referred to as, “fuzzy wales”) running parallel to the limb. In contrast to conventional circumferential compression wraps, this longitudinal compression cannot cause a tourniquet effect that could interfere with limb circulation and lymphatic drainage.

EdemaWear delivers optimal pressure under the parallel ridges while leaving four fifths of the skin surface free. This provides optimal delivery of arterial blood and the efficient return of lymph and venous blood to the circulatory system.

Constructed from durable Nylon and Lycra, EdemaWear is easy to clean and is reusable. Its low profile, open construction ensures that it is cool and comfortable in use, while allowing patients to use their existing footwear during treatment.

Unlike conventional wraps and stockings, patients and caregivers alike find EdemaWear is easy to put on and easy to remove. It can be the first option for compression or as an alternative to compression modalities that patients refuse to use.

Indications:

- Edema from venous hypertension
- Post-operative edema
- Lymphedema
- Venous leg ulcers
- Skin tears
- Wherever safer, more comfortable compression is required.
